IN THE PUBLIC LIBRARY
C. WINFRED COUGHLIN, Librarian
Every week-day: 9 a. m. to 8.30 p. m.

Under which classification do you fall? The reader who reads through—The reader who reads at—The reader who reads in—The reader who reads read about—The well beloved reader who reads between the lines.

Rocklandites are well read. This is no idle statement. We have proof of this fact every day.

Statistics for the past six months completing one half of this library year show that 30,225 books have been loaned, a gain of 822 books over the same period of last year. The largest month was January when, 5,523 books were circulated. Out of the total number 7,744 books were loaned to the children. The use of non-fiction totaled 7,439 with the literature class leading, followed by biography. The largest circulation for any one day was 387. Counting re-registrations and new borrowers we have added 543 names to our registration file.

Since we are a non-endowed public library our book additions are not what they might be but it is our aim as some of our "literary friends" have termed it "to get the best of what there is." In keeping up with the new books one of our greatest hardships is the inability to purchase books to replace the books which wear out. During the six months 286 books were added to the regular collecting bringing the total number of volumes to 16,939.

Public spirited citizens can help us meet our problem of replacing books by going through their own bookcases. And what better use can your books be put to. We believe that not more than one book out of fifty of modern fiction is read twice by the same person. It is either left useless on the shelves or loaned to some friend—and forgotten. To give the book to the library means that it is used as long as it may still be recognized as a book, and then the friend has the privilege of reading it—yes, but not forgetting it—and thereby limiting its usefulness.

The list of books needed at the library is too long to print. Any good book of fiction is welcome and the donor may rest assured that in putting her books to this use a fine service is being given to the community and library funds are released for the purchase of only the newest books.

In conjunction with the Garden Club the library is doing its bit in furthering their program of Conservation of Wild Flowers. The children are getting their nature lessons through the weekly Story Hour and to give them the opportunity of knowing their wild flowers a Wild Flower Contest has been started which will continue until June. For the two bringing in the largest variety prizes will be offered. The contest has now been under way for a week and to date 34 specimens have been brought to the library.

A great deal of talent is being discovered among the Story Hour lovers for the playlets which are adapted from well known stories and produced every other week under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Gatzcombe. Children do enjoy performing and great fun is had by all.

The library has added the pictorial magazine "Life" to its collection after waiting three months to be placed on the subscription list.

WISCASSET COURT

Grand Jury Finds 17 Indictments—Two Women On Traverse Jury

Seventeen indictments were returned by the grand jury in the Lincoln County Superior Court Thursday. Of the 17, two were secret and bench warrants for the indicted persons were issued.

Indictments made public were: William G. Hodgkins, 3d, of Damariscotta and Lincoln Hopkins of New-castle, breaking, entering and larceny, Samuel B. Tibbets of Damariscotta, assault and battery. Asa Winslow of Nobleboro, two, for a statutory offense involving a 15-year-old girl.

John McKenzie of Quincy, Mass., breaking and entering. Harold Sumpter of Boston, breaking and entering. James Carr of Dresden, breaking and entering. Leonard Frank Robbins of Dresden, breaking and entering. Julius Rundin of Portland, assault and battery on a deputy sheriff. Wafer Stover of Waldoboro, breaking, entering and larceny.

Raymond Brewer of Boothbay Harbor arson, with a second indictment charging breaking, entering and larceny. Oswald Weeks of Waldoboro, statutory offense involving a 14-year-old girl. Howard Murphy of Boothbay, assault and battery. Arthur Murphy of Boothbay, assault and battery.

One traverse jury was empaneled Thursday. Included in the panel were two women, Grace A. Albee of Wiscasset and Angie Dodge of Boothbay Harbor. Other jurors making up the panel were Ambrose P. Alley of South Bristol, Russell Blaisdell of Bristol, Charles E. Bowser and Walter Winchenbach of Waldoboro, Edward K. Hall of New-castle, Allen J. Jewett of Alna, Walter E. Kaler of Waldoboro, Don S. Sewall of Boothbay Harbor, J. Arthur Stevens, Jr., of Boothbay and Judson Trask of Nobleboro. Don S. Sewall was chosen foreman.

Four supernumeraries were sworn for service—Douglas Benner of Bristol, Herbert Carter of Jefferson, Emory Greenleaf of Boothbay and Fred M. Orne of Southport.

Jude Parre, was centered the life of a small town of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1639. A fascinating and vital novel of early life in New England.

"Present Indicative" by Noel Coward. The author's story of his fascinatingly eventful career.

"Years" by Virginia Woolf. In a prose style, subtle in its simplicity, Mrs. Woolf recreates the life of the Pargiter family, English gentle folk, during the past fifty years. A book which will delight the discriminating reader.

"Something of Myself For My Friends, Known and Unknown" by Rudyard Kipling. Kipling's short life history is a writer's autobiography, and his preoccupation with literature is evident throughout.

"We Are Not Alone" by James Hilton. A busy, preoccupied doctor, affectionately known as the "little doctor" in the English Cathedral town where he practised, is the central character of this novelette. Another lovable Mr. Chips.

"Country Kitchen" by Mrs. Delia Lutes. Chosen as the most original book of the year. To be read for this alone.

"Discovering My Job" edited by Anne Stoddard. Every day we become more and more conscious of the need of some vocational direction in the important teenage years. As more fields open up to women and as competition becomes keener and keener one needs all the advice one can procure. This collection of essays by authorities in their fields has been made with just these problems in mind.

"We or They" by Hamilton Fish Armstrong. The editor of Foreign Affairs sees two rival and wholly incompatible conceptions of life—the democratic and the dictatorial—locked in conflict all over the world. "Getting Help From Religion" by James Gilkey. A recipe for troubled and doubtful souls.

"Be like me and pay your taxes with a smile," advised Mrs. Wise. "I should love to," said Miss Sharp, "but they insist on cash."

Candidates In Drive For Readers—Dark Horses Have Opportunity As No Contestant Has Commanding Lead

Excitement and intense activity prevails among the contenders in the Courier-Gazette campaign, as each candidate realizes that he or she is within reach of the $500 prize to be won or lost during the next few weeks, depending in a great measure upon the number of votes turned in during the first period.

Contestants are now going after every NEW subscription, every old subscription and every extension subscription that they have in sight. They realize that they must fortify their present standing with every available subscription and extension as at the present writing it is "anybody's race." So close are the working contestants running that any one of them can win.

Every day hundreds of people in this territory are watching their progress. They know whether you are hitting the ball. They know you too, and they know what to expect of you. Aside from the fact that you stand to receive $500 in cash, or one of the many other awards, you stand also

AMID THE CHERRY BLOSSOMS

A Rockland Woman Tells of Trip To Washington and the Congressional Club's Breakfast

One could not visit the Capital City without a glimpse of the historic places surrounding it, and we could not forego a few social affairs when time permitted. There was first a trip around the city, to the Capitol with its three and one-half acres of sloping lawns of velvety green where flowers were already in bloom, and fountains whose waters cascade over ledges into a large circular pool. Set as it is at such a height, it overlooks a vast amphitheatre of the Potomac.

Then on to the White House whose corner stone was laid by Washington in 1792, and whose name was given because of the numerous coats of white paint which obliterated the marks of fire following an attack by the British in 1814; the six million dollar Library of Congress; the bank of our nation, U. S. Treasury; the U. S. Supreme Court building, and many other of our beautiful government buildings.

We had suddenly been transplanted from a land in all the barrenness of spring to another where grass was of a summer green, flowers blooming everywhere and the temperature at 93. The Japanese cherry blossoms along Riverside Drive Potomac Park, were a beautiful sight. Looking across the pool from Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial, just at sunset, with the great weeping willow trees and cherry blossoms reflecting in the waters, seemed next to Paradise.

In the Smithsonian Institute, "Lindys" "Spirit of St. Louis" and the "Winnie Mae" have found peaceful resting places. Encased in glass are life-sized models of the First Ladies dressed in their "inaugural gowns" and hair dressed in fashion with their respective periods. Time would not permit us to explore this marvelously interesting building for which the heavens, the earth, the sea and the very air we breathe has been searched and their mysteries brought to light.

Enroute to Mt. Vernon we passed the little brick home of Francis Scott Key and over a bridge of the same name, on the same route as that of the Unknown Soldier's funeral procession when 35,000 people paraded. Only Mr. and Mrs. Wilson rode and that was because of the President's illness. On the outskirts of the Lee Mansion estate, which Lincoln ordered seized during the Civil War is a plot where 1600 dead of the Civil War are buried. Little stones, all alike, row on row, run in a straight line whichever way you look at them. The stately Mansion with its huge pillared porch commands a sweeping view of the Potomac, over a park where cherry trees were in full bloom. Eleven hundred acres were bought from the Lee heirs to be used as a National cemetery. At the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, a guard is constantly on duty and one is not permitted to enter until he passes, which is the signal. To this tomb were brought three and one half tons of French soil to be used in the burial. Many thousands gather in the amphitheatre of the Memorial which was built by the Grand Army of the Republic in honor of their dead.

Passing along the Federal Highway, all on made land at the cost of $7 per inch, there were no signboards.

BEARING "TAGS"

One Hundred Seed Lobsters Are Liberated For Experimental Purposes

Thomaston—How active is a female lobster when she is carrying seeds? How far will she crawl and how fast? Does she go off shore or towards shore or hang around in one spot? The Department of Sea and Shore Fisheries is going to try and find an answer to these questions and is asking the fishermen to co-operate, according to Commissioner Rodney E. Feyler.

The spawning season is now at hand and today the Department's patrol boat "Bud" released nearly 100 prospective mamas in the vicinity of Boothbay Harbor, each bearing a U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, numbered tag. The tag was inserted in one of the sections of the tail flipper and will remain there. The exact spot and time at which each was released was recorded.

Fishermen catching any of these lobsters are requested to return the tag either to the Department of Sea and Shore Fisheries, Thomaston; or to the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, Boothbay Harbor. As the result of these tests several problems will be

BRILLIANT EVENTS PLANNED

When the State Federation of Music Clubs Meets Here Next Week

The State Federation of Music Clubs will meet in this city next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 20-22, all meetings and concerts with the exception of the contests, which will be conducted at the Universalist Church, to be held at the Congregational Church.

The senior activities open Thursday, with registration at 2 o'clock. The official opening of the program will begin at 2.30 with invocation and address of welcome, in be interspersed by vocal solos by Mrs. Bernice Sturtevant, of Les Camarades Musiciens of Bath, a piano number by Mrs. Ruth Collier of Camden and assembly singing. A tea will follow the afternoon program, with an evening concert at 8 o'clock by representative clubs from all parts of the State.

Friday morning the business sessions and reports will be continued and addresses by National and State officers will be given throughout the convention. The Federation officers have been most fortunate in securing as guest speaker Geoffrey O'Hara, noted composer, who has for his first subject "Problems of the American Composer" and for his second, a project in which he is very much interested, "The Eastern Music Camps."

Other well known National and State officers who will speak at this time are Mrs. George K. Hale of Providence, past president of the Plymouth district and also National vice president from 1935 to 1937; and Miss Ruth Perry of Providence, past president of the Plymouth district and National treasurer; Miss Julia Noyes of Portland, National vice president, and past president of M.F.M.C.; Miss Julia Williams, past National Junior Counselor; Mrs. Guy P. Gannett, National Board of Directors, and Miss Louise Armstrong.

SIXTH BIRTHDAY

The Scribblers' Club Takes Account of Stock—Mrs. Karl Re-elected

The Scribblers Club has had another successful year and observed its sixth birthday in a fitting manner Monday night. Following a 6:30 dinner the members adjourned to the home of Mrs. Harriette Levensaler.

The club has held 12 regular meetings during the year, also a special meeting at the home of Mrs. Euphemia Lawrence, for the purpose of meeting her house guest, Mrs. Helen McMahan, of Cedar Creek, Oklahoma. Mrs. McMahan charmed the members with the reading of her poems and giving an account of her work.

The club now has two honorary members, Charles A. A. Parker of Medford, Mass., author of "L'Alouette" and "Threads in Tapestry" and James A. Gabelle of Ridge-wood, N. J., has been elected to membership this year. He is the author of "Expression" and "Stardust and Dreams." Both poets have encouraged the members and shown interest in their work.

There have been 88 poetry and prose acceptances for publication reported during the year. Mrs. Euphemia Lawrence leads with 25 to her credit and Mrs. Ethel Fisher won second prize, having a total of 16.

The periodicals in which members work have appeared are, Cycle, Blue Moon, L'Alouette, St. Nicholas, Roots in New England, Ad Astra, Expression, Country Bard, Better Homes and Gardens, Literary America, Threads in Tapestry, The American Mercury, Pirates Gold, Boston Herald, Lewiston Journal, Lowell Courier Citizen, The Democrat, Jacksonville District Bulletin and Washington Post.

By request, the work of individual members was sent to the Waterville Poetry Club, to be read at a meeting of that group.

Honors which have come to members during the year were: Mrs. Ruth Whittemore had a request for her story "Yea, Bobcat!" printed in the August 1934 number of St. Nicholas to be included in a book, "Best Stories for Young People."

Mrs. Ethel Fisher had an article on "The Girlhood of Edna St. Vincent Millay," in June and July editions of St. Nicholas magazine.

Mrs. Irene Moran had written a book review of Harold Vinal's book of poems, "Hurricane" for the Washington Post.

Mrs. Sarah McCullagh's poem "Bowl of the Wind" was used in a Text Book, to represent the Hexad form.

One member has entered a novel present president of Plymouth District.

The banquet will be held Friday at 7 o'clock at The Thorndike Hotel, the evening concert to feature the Bangor String Ensemble, directed by Mrs. Anna I. Dymond; the Westbrook College Glee Club, presenting a manuscript program and directed by Rupert Neilly of Portland and a special piano recital to be given by Miss Elizabeth Congdon of Providence, who was twice a New England contest winner.

This concert is complimentary to Federation members, others may attend upon payment of a reasonable admission fee. The excellent program offered is an unusual opportunity for young students to hear a talented pianist and should be an incentive to all musicians. With the exception of the Friday night concert, there will be free admission to all programs and meetings. It is earnestly hoped that the general public will avail itself of this unusual chance of hearing the talented musicians of the State and their guest artists.

Saturday will be Junior Day, registration beginning at 9 o'clock and program at 10, with the Junior Harmony Club acting as hostess. The business session will be opened with the address of welcome, continuing with talks by National and State officers and program numbers. A parade will be given at noon, led by the High School Band of 30 pieces, George Law directing, followed by State clubs. Two hundred juniors, as a rough estimate, are expected, luncheon to be served at 12.30, for which reservations must be made by Tuesday, with Mrs. Leola Noyes, 38 Orange street, parents and friends being urged to attend, that they may see and hear the remarkable work done by the young people in musical presentations.

entitled "Grass Rooters" in the Harper novel contest and the typing was done by another member of the club.

Mrs. Alice Karl and Miss Relief Nichols were winners in the Portland Sunday Telegram poetry contest.

Those having received special awards were: Mrs. Alice Karl, Mrs. Marguerite McAlman, Mrs. Irene Moran, Mrs. Harriette Levensaler, Mrs. Elizabeth Foxwell, Mrs. Orissa Merritt, Mrs. Ethel Fisher, Mrs. Euphemia Lawrence, Mrs. Edna Clements and Miss Relief Nichols.

The Rockland club was made a charter member of The Poetry Fellowship of Maine, organized in October 1936 at Hunkley. The second meeting will be held on Friday, May 28th at Dover-Foxcroft, at which time the Scribblers hope to be present.

These poets have been the subject for programs during the year: Robert Frost, Robert P. Tristram Coffin, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Sara Teasdale, Harold Vinal, Grace Noll Crowell and Edna St. Vincent Millay, with the following people in charge—Mrs. Harriette Levensaler, Mrs. Irene Moran, Mrs. Euphemia Lawrence, Mrs. Sarah McCullagh, Mrs. Orissa Merritt, Mrs. Edna Robbins and Mrs. Ethel Fisher.

The officers elected were: Mrs. Alice Karl, president (re-elected) Miss Relief Nichols, vice president, Mrs. Ethel Lovejoy, secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Euphemia Lawrence in Rockport.

"Mandy," said the dusky woman's mistress, "I've heard about your hard luck. I'm terribly sorry."

"Deed ma'am. Ah aint had no hahd luck."

"But, your husband, wasn't he killed in an accident yesterday?"

"Yes, ma'am; but dat's his hard luck, not mine."—Florida Times-Union.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had my life to live again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness. —Charles Darwin.

THE SECRET

I met God in the morning
When my day was at its best;
And His Presence came like sunrise
Like a glory in my breast.
All day long The Presence lingered
All day long He stayed with me;
And we sailed in perfect calmness
O'er a very troubled sea.
Other ships were blown and battered,
Other ships were some distressed;
But the winds that seemed to drive them
Brought to us a peace and rest.
Then I thought of other warnings
With a keen remorse of mind,
When I too had loosed the mooring
With The Presence left behind.
So I think I know the secret
Learned from many a troubled way:
You must seek Him in the morning
If you want Him through the day.

"ON TO PAWTUCKET"

We do not know how the Rockland High School students will fare with their one-act play in Pawtucket tonight, but it's not going to lessen our admiration of the local participants if they do not emerge victorious. The Lincoln street educational institution has produced many brilliant students who have achieved a high degree of success in athletics, literature, etc., but it is not recalled at the moment that the school has ever entered competition outside of Maine's borders. The members of the cast have seemed particularly adapted to the play "Trifles," and so evenly balanced has the cast been that it came through the Maine contests backed by unanimous decision of the judges. No, we may not win tonight, but we are vastly proud of our entry in the contest at Pawtucket, and we are very sure that the members would feel additional inspiration if they could know how every resident of Rockland is pulling for them.

When the World War buddies meet in their respective State encampments at Old Orchard and Rumford next month, Rockland is going to have a keen interest in the proceedings. At Old Orchard because Hector G. Staples of Rockland is a candidate for department commander of the American Legion, and at Rumford because the Veterans of Foreign Wars are determined to again place Oliver R. Hamlin in the contest for department commander. Both were in the field last year. Mr. Staples was runner-up in the American Legion contest, making such an exceptionally fine showing that many Posts have regarded him as the logical candidate this year. And it is said that the situation looks very favorable for him despite the appearance of other candidates. Mr. Hamlin a year ago was decisively beaten, through an unexpected turn of affairs, and is not now a candidate on his own initiative. His value to the V.F.W. is so widely recognized, however, that his friends are said to be inaugurating another drive.

The uncertainty of the granite industry is being rather graphically demonstrated in two Knox County centers. This paper has already described at some length the activities at Clark Island, where huge piles of paving blocks are soon to be transported to the New York market, and where 250 expert workmen are turning their knowledge to profit. On the other side of the bay, at Vinalhaven, is seen the opposite of that desirable condition of affairs. The quarries are silent and the payrolls non-existent. It is the age-old story of industrial ups and downs.

Vinalhaven holds a special town meeting Monday to act upon the matter of daylight saving, or "summer time," as most of the newspapers and radio announcers now refer to it. This is nobody's affair outside of Vinalhaven, and the majority sentiment will rule. Because daylight time exists in so many communities this side of the Mississippi River the inconvenience naturally falls upon those who persist in adhering to standard time. Many Maine communities have changed to daylight time, recognizing that fact.

The disaster which befell the British destroyer Hunter while on patrol duty in Spanish waters might have more significance if anybody knew just what destroyed the ship. The general belief is that the craft was wrecked by a mine, but whose mine? Was it one which had been planted by the Spanish government or one laid by the Rebels. A Spanish mine once plunged our own country into war.

Back from his Texas fishing trip, greatly refreshed, and apparently unshaken in his dictatorial policy concerning the Supreme Court, President Roosevelt has turned an obdurate ear toward well meaning associates who advised him to consider a compromise. The voice of the people seemingly did not penetrate the Texas bayous.

The investigation which is now being made to determine the cause of the Hindenburg disaster may produce some facts of inestimable value to aviation, but just at present the Zeppelin-type of airplane doesn't seem to have many friends at court.

WE'RE CONSERVATIVE

As we travel through the years we think of our depositors as "passengers" traveling with us. Their safety is our first thought. So we prefer to choose the safe main road of tested banking principles.

We do not ask our depositors to go with us on winding cow-paths of untried banking methods. By keeping where the going is clear and straight we keep faith with those who look to us for safe guidance. That is what it means to be "conservative."

Camps On Trail Of Der Captain Grimes — Cigars Change Hands

(By O. W. D.)

With the avowed intention of showing his teammates that he was no Jonah and to shear the bewhiskered chins of the Skippers in an attempt to stop their everlasting chin music, Der Captain Grimes stepped into the breach last Monday night, marched his cohorts up the alley and then marched them down again, to the cash counter, where they paid for the evening's entertainment. For history kept right on repeating, and while Der Captain's team seems to be able to win when he is absent, his presence makes their hearts grow tender or sumpin' and they fall an easy prey to those swashbuckling Skippers.

The biggest thorn in Der Captain's side was the old Skipper Skip himself, who emerged from a long hibernation away from the alleys to take an observation, and boy, was his eye good? We submit that it was. His 122 in the first string and 331 for a total made everybody else look like an also ran. By virtue of two strikes in succession he copped a 28 and an 18 in the ninth and last frames of his first string. Although the old Goose was back in the lineup and he managed to get up in the king-row, he was beaten out for second place by Leon Sanborn, while the Don Donnerwetter Poole was a bad fourth.

Altogether it was a sad evening for Der Captain and he did not regain his composure and some of his lost cigars till he pulled off a special grudge match with Brer Peterson after the regular match was over. Here he managed by dint of much scratching, (figuratively speaking we mean, he hasn't got the itch to swipe a game and pocket a few stogies at the expense of the P. M., who was betting on Brer Peterson. Gene Hall wasn't so hot as a bowler but as an entertainer was in fine fettle, and although there wasn't much "kick" to his ball there was plenty in his jokes. If Der Captain, like General Grant, decides to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer, some of the boys are in for a hot time, playing, paying, and praying. The score:

NORTH HAVEN NEWS

In Which Are Found Tributes To Two Well Known Citizens

North Haven, May 11
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
When a person accomplishes what appears a success by unfair means. God says he has made a failure of it. But when a person can accomplish a success by honest effort, and hard work, we should take our hats off to him and give him the credit of it.

Representative Lloyd Crockett presented a petition with a large number of signers to the Legislature asking that three-fourths of the car license money paid the State from the towns of North Haven and Vinalhaven be returned to them for road repair. At the hearing in the committee room there was a good representation from North Haven and Vinalhaven in favor of the bill. But the committee reported a unanimous vote. "Ought not to pass."

Ninety-nine men out of 100 would have said, the bill is dead, and there is no use to make any further effort for it.

Not so with Representative Crockett. By hard work, and honest representation, when the vote was taken on the bill, there was but one in the House against it. And it was carried in the Senate by a substantial vote.

Crockett has the right to feel proud of his work on this bill and North Haven and Vinalhaven should give him the credit due him.

Deacon C. S. Staples celebrated his 85th birthday Sunday at his home. A number of friends called on him during the day with a glad handshake and neighbor Herman Crockett took him on a ride. He is enjoying fair health and his mind is as keen for cross-word puzzles as a High School pupil. We all wish him many returns of the day.

The children of the Thoroughfare Grammar School have now established a bird sanctuary in back of their school house on the land owned by C. S. Staples. They have built and placed in the trees some dozen or more assorted bird houses, and are now desirous of obtaining a bird bath for the same. Tree swallows have been noticed looking over the homes and it is hoped that they will decide to remain there.

The pupils are keeping an individual bird calendar, and also a school calendar. Any additional suggestion by the parents or friends, will be very much appreciated by the pupils and the principal.

At Appleton Thursday the local High School team lost to Warren 5 to 1 in a seven-inning game. Warren made five hits and five errors, and Appleton three hits and four errors. The batteries were J. Spear and Matson; Griffin Keene and Mink.

Waldoboro 13, Union 0

Fresh from its victory over Boothbay Harbor, Waldoboro High invaded Union Thursday and blanked the home team by a score of 13 to 0. The game was comparatively close until the fifth inning when seven youths from the Medomak valley paraded across the plate. French was in fine fettle, fanning 11 batters in the seven stanzas. The only Union man to hit safely was Howard. Waldoboro made eight hits and three errors, and Union one hit and eight errors. The batteries were French and Ellis; Rich and McEdward.

Crosby 10, Rockport 6

Crosby High of Belfast got away to a flying start in Rockport Thursday, scoring seven runs in the first two innings. Batting and fielding honors were about even. Crosby made 12 hits and two errors, and Rockport 10 hits and three errors. The batteries: Foster and Black; Ames, Merrill and Kenney.

CUSHING

Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart were called to Unity Friday by the illness of their son Clayton, who is attending High School there. He was taken to the Waldo County Hospital, Belfast, where he is to undergo an appendix operation as soon as his condition will permit. He has been on the verge of pneumonia for a few days.

Rev. and Mrs. Dana Payson of Southport, were guests Sunday of Fannie Freeman on the latter's 18th birthday. Mrs. Freeman received many cards and letters of congratulation.

Miss Ruth McCartney of Rockland is housekeeper at the F. W. Atkins' home.

Friends of Hiram Ulmer were saddened at news of his death which occurred Sunday in Rockland following a month's suffering from severe burns sustained when he fell into a fire as result of a heart attack.

ROCKLAND'S V. F. W.

Going To State Encampment Asking Recognition of a Fine Post

Delegates to represent this community at the State encampment June 18-20 at Rumford have been elected by Huntley-Hill Post, V.F.W. Commander Frank J. McDonnell is automatically a delegate by virtue of his office as head of the local unit. Comrades Daniel A. Noonan, John S. Randlett and Nathan Berliawski were chosen as delegates, and Wilbur W. Stamp, Arthur L. Marks and Vernon O. Giles as alternates.

A group of approximately 35 comrades is expected to attend the reunion and convention at Rumford.

Comrade Oliver R. Hamlin, Department Chief of Staff, stated that he is not seeking the Department command. However, the members of this Post believe he can be persuaded, because he is the choice of 18 other Posts within the State. The Rockland unit will leave no stone unturned to have him elected as the next Department commander.

Comrade Vernon O. Giles is well liked for Department quartermaster and already has a strong following, since he declared his intention to seek that office. It is expected that Comrade John Guistin will bring with him the Department chaplainship on his return from the Encampment because he is backed for that position by all present department officers and a host of past commanders. Rockland has the best Post in the State and will show the way.

More than 3600 local units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States throughout the country are selecting their delegates this month for various annual State encampments scheduled for June, July and August. One of the most important duties of the encampments is the election of officers for the fiscal year, 1937-1938. The various department meetings of the V.F.W. precede the annual national encampment which this year will be held Aug. 29-Sept. 3 at Buffalo. Representation at the National Convention is based on one delegate to 50 members, the delegates being elected in the various local units of the organization. The 1937 national encampment will be the 38th of the overseas veterans' organization which was founded in 1899 at Columbus, Ohio.

That the department convention of this State will break all previous records from the standpoint of numbers in attendance, was prophesied at the meeting by Commander McDonnell who stated that this organization has grown greatly since the State meeting of last year which Rockland was fortunate to entertain, both in number of local units and in membership as a whole. Our rapid expansion is due in large part to the vigilant campaign waged by the V.F.W. in behalf of disabled comrades

TALK OF THE TOWN

With the temperature at freezing, rain still falling, and pastures and fields turned into miniature lakes, Rockland awoke this morning to find itself confronted by one of those typical spring days, concerning which the spring poets do not write. Fitting weather for a coronation, but quite discouraging to bill collectors. The mild voiced E. B. Rideout tells us that conditions will improve tonight and that several blankets may be removed from the bed.

Ernest C. Davis is enjoying a few days' fishing trip at Enfield.

Pleasant Valley Grange will serve its final public supper for the season next Friday with Eunice Morse and Raymond Anderson heading the committee. A card party will follow for those who care to play. Prizes will be awarded.

Lincoln E. McRae, who recently bought the property of the Rockland Country Club, gives notice that all contracts made with this organization on or after May 7, 1937, will be assumed by him. Golf dues have been placed at $25, entitling a man and wife to full club privileges or a single person to full club privileges. Greens fees are $1.50, or $1 after 5 p. m. Tennis dues, $10. Tennis fees 25 cents an hour.

Next Thursday night the members of Winslow-Holbrook Post will have the pleasure of seeing a series of moving pictures and hearing a lecture showing the progress of the U. S. Navy in the National Defense program. William H. Kelley, U.S.N., of Bangor will present the pictures and lecture. Members of all Legion Posts in Knox County are invited to share this rare treat with the Rockland boys. Supper will be served by the Auxiliary at 6:30 o'clock and a nominal fee will be charged. Commander Margeson is particularly anxious to have a good representation of the Post present and will guarantee a delightful entertaining evening to all who attend.

Sunshine Society meets Monday at 2 o'clock at the Central Maine rooms.

John Miller of Camden has been chosen to present the men's gifts at the University of Maine commencement.

Miss Adelaide Cross is directing the music routine at Rockland High School during the illness of Mrs. Esther Rogers.

George E. Moody, Cedar street, has bought land at Ash Point from Georgina Clark of Cambridge, Mass., through Freeman Young, real estate agent.

The Rockland tug Sommers N. Smith has been doing some neighborly assisting up around Bucksport while the Walter Ross has been undergoing boiler repairs.

The Sons of Union Veterans are to have a district rally in Grand Army hall tonight, with supper from 5:30 to 7:30, daylight time. Col. I. Leslie Cross is district supervisor.

Mrs. H. H. McDonald of Allston, Mass., while visiting friends at Hotel Statler, met with a painful accident when she slipped in the lobby, breaking her ankle in two places. Mrs. McDonald was formerly Bernice Sprague of this city.

Folks who like to patronize the shore resorts during the summer season will find that there have been added to their list for the coming Sunday—Community Sweet Shop, Witham's Lobster Pound, and Trail's End. Reference to openings already held has been made in these columns.

Mrs. Helen Paladino will be chairman of the supper preceding the meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge Tuesday night. Mrs. Addie Brown, vice grand, is in charge of the dining room. An entertainment is being prepared to honor the past noble grands. After the business session an important drill meeting will be held.

Incorporation papers of the Lucerne Log Lodge Company of Rockland, with authorized capital stock of $50,000 were approved Thursday by the Attorney General's department. Katharine C. Derry and State Representative Alan L. Bird of Rockland were listed as president and treasurer of the firm, organized to conduct a hotel, restaurant and tavern business.

Another Rockland launching is scheduled for the near future, in fact, tomorrow. It is the good ship Cuckoo, built in odd hours since last September by Lucien Green Jr. The Cuckoo is 18 feet long and patterned in general after John Snow's "Mistake." Oak frame, cedar planking, copper fastened with excellent lines, it promises sharp competition for local sailing craft.

Fred E. Brown of Rockland, sentenced to 8 to 16 years in State Prison in November, 1933, on a larceny charge, has filed a pardon petition with the Secretary of State's Department. Brown said in his petition he believed the sentence imposed was "excessive in view of all the circumstances connected with the case..." and expressed his belief that he had served sufficient time "to satisfy the ends of justice."

Tommy Regan of Bangor and Lee Anderson of Portland went over the 10-round route at the Tillson Avenue Stadium last night with results distinctly favorable to the up-river boxer. There was some vigorous fighting in this feature picture. The fans sat up to take notice when Ernie Zachow of Portland entered the ring for his first bout in professional circles. His opponent was Butch Wooster, who gave the newcomer a rough reception, sending him to the mat in the first round, and winning in the second on a technical knockout. Other results: Bob Thompson of Portland, also a "deb" licked Alton Wooster in the second round; George McKinnon had the edge on Buddy Widdowcombe. It was Jack O'Brien's initial appearance as manager and he made good.

An outstanding feature of the annual convention of the Maine Federation of Music Clubs, convening in Rockland May 20, 21, 22, will be the recital Friday night given by Elizabeth Congdon, young American pianist. Miss Congdon brings to her instrument a seriousness of purpose and an artistic integrity, combined with a splendid technical equipment and sterling musicianship. In these days, when the attention of the American public is focused on the musical programs of its own nation, it is gratifying to see an American young artist meeting with such obvious success. She is an artist-pupil of Felix Fox, has studied exclusively in this country, and is endowed with the splendid heritage of a fine New England background. She has played before music clubs of prominence, on radio programs, and at many exclusive schools. She has also appeared as soloist with the Providence Symphony Orchestra. The place and exact hour will be announced in a later issue, and admission will probably be by ticket priced very reasonably.

AN EVEN HUNDRED

What is unquestionably an all-time speaking record for Rockland culminates Tuesday night when Frank A. Winslow, associate editor of The Courier-Gazette, will present his 100th lecture, this amazing total having been reached from scratch in approximately three years. The meeting will be held in the tower room of Community Building, starting at 7:30, and all friends wishing to hear a composite of Mr. Winslow's several lectures, are cordially invited to present themselves. Prior to the tower room gathering the guest speaker is being tendered a testimonial dinner by his office associates at The Thorndike, as May 18 has the added merit of being his natal day.

Delegates and alternates, to the State Convention of the American Legion Auxiliary will be elected at a special meeting to be held Monday night at 7:30. Other business matters will also be disposed of at this time.

Ralph Ulmer Camp and Auxiliary met Wednesday night, the excellent supper being followed by beano. Prize winners were Mrs. Carrie Higgins of Camden, Albert Hastings and Mrs. Minnie Smith. Both organizations conferred the degree on one candidate, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith.

An 11-year-old Southend girl ran away from home yesterday afternoon, and undiscovered by the stormy weather and the fact that she had only a few cents on her person, hit the Atlantic Trail for Boston, determined to seek shelter with an aunt whose last name she could not remember. The little girl was given a lift as far as Thomaston, but upon reaching Warren for some reason turned back. Here she was found by Sheriff C. Earle Ludwick, who had been on the search only half an hour when he located the runaway girl. She was promptly returned to the parents, with the sheriff's recommendation for kind treatment.

PARISH MEETING

Universalists Find Many Causes For Satisfaction At Annual Meeting

A well attended meeting of the Universalist parish was held Monday night at which time the members listened to the annual reports from the various organizations of the church, laid plans for another year's work and elected a board of trustees to direct the affairs of the parish. The reports all showed the church to be in a healthy condition. Each organization showed a gain over last year, with money in each treasury and all bills paid. The annual church drive showed a gratifying gain over last year.

An additional drive for the church painting fund has brought in more than $800 and this is now being expended in painting and otherwise improving the exterior of the edifice. New members have been added to the church and the parish and there is, to quote from the pastor's address, a healthy state of affairs prevailing in the church.

There is an increased interest in spiritual affairs, a growth in the spirit of co-operation and good will, of loyalty and devotion to duty.

Eugene E. Stoddard and Edward C. Payson were elected as trustees to fill the places of George L. St. Clair and J. A. Jameson who retire automatically after three years of service and they, with the following persons make up the present membership of the board, Lloyd C. Daniels, Raymond H. Perry, Walter H. Spear, Sydney B. Copeland and H. P. Blodgett.

Sincere thanks were expressed for the able work done by Edward R. Veazie in his direction of the annual drive for subscriptions; also to Miss Ellen Cochran for her gratuitous work in the Sunday school after the resignation and removal from the city of Atwood Levensaler, the superintendent.

Members of Ruth Mayhew Tent will meet for sewing Monday afternoon.

Why not apply the torch to those caterpillar nests which are disfiguring so many highways at the present moment.

William M. Cullen, formerly of Thomaston, has been elected president of the Lewiston Parent-Teacher Association.

Supt. George J. Cumming was in Portland Thursday attending a committee meeting of the National Youth Administration.

A Ford truck, owned by Charles Grotton, was stolen from its parking place on Camden street Thursday night, but was located yesterday.

Scenes of the Hindenburg disaster at Lakehurst, N. J., will be shown in the Paramount news reel at Strand Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The Adams Craft Club held its last meeting of the season Thursday night with Mrs. Hervey Allen at Camp Waldon Megunticook Lake. An excellent picnic supper preceded the meeting. In the floral contest highest score went to Mrs. Ralph Wiggins, the prize being a copy of "The Wild Garden" by Margaret McKenney. The evening was spent socially.

Ruth Mayhew Tent meets at G.A.R. hall Monday night with drill and practice for the memorial service to be held May 24, with invitations extended to the public. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. French will furnish help on the supper to be served at 6 o'clock. All officers and color-bearers will make a special effort to be present when the meeting opens at 7:30.

Rainy weather has raised havoc with the Knox and Lincoln schedule. The games scheduled for next week are: Tuesday, Rockland at Lincoln, Vinalhaven at Thomaston, St. George at Camden; Friday, Thomaston at Rockland, Lincoln at Camden, St. George at Vinalhaven. Doubtless some postponed games have been arranged but no manager has notified this paper to that effect.

Everett A. Munsey has severed his connection with Fireproof Garage and is now associated with T. C. Fissette in the sale of Plymouth and De Soto automobiles.

Miriam Rebekah Lodge will entertain the past noble grands Tuesday night. Supper will be served at 6:15. It is hoped all past noble grands will be present.

Albert Thomas, George Simmons, Herbert Higgins and Kenneth Moran have been delegated by Anderson Camp, S. of U. V. to mark the soldiers' graves for Memorial Day.

The wooden fence surrounding the High School premises is about to graduate. The Senior class is to present the school with cement posts and connecting chains which will give the institution a real college atmosphere.

Baraca Class held its monthly meeting Wednesday night in the Methodist vestry, attended by a large number of members. After a short business meeting, games were played, indoor shuffle board being much enjoyed. Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Thelma Stanley.

Norman Richards pleaded guilty in Municipal Court Thursday to shooting Ursula Richards' dog, and was found guilty of making a serious threat against Mrs. Richards. He was ordered to keep the peace and deposit his artillery with the police or serve six months in jail. He was unable to get bail, and is in custody.

Winslow-Holbrook Post is organizing a brass band to accompany the Rockland delegation to the State convention of the American Legion in Old Orchard. Warden Ted Johnson of the State Prison will probably be the director. Needless to say that the band will whoop 'er up vigorously in behalf of the candidacy of Hector G. The Thomaston Saturday carrier service is now functioning, made necessary by the closing of the postoffice at noon, and a similar plan will be adopted immediately in Camden.

The whys and wherefores of motor transportation were presented to local Rotarians yesterday by George W. Scott, president elect of the Belfast Club. Mr. Scott pictured motor transport as today recognized by the Public Utilities Commission with a rate schedule recently compiled at a cost of $14,000. Numerous regulations govern the operation of the big trucks including insurance of cargo and fitness, experience and age of drivers. Visiting Rotarians included Kenneth Brown of Augusta, Allen Curtis, Belfast, Pearl G. Willey, Camden and Bob Leary of Danvers, Mass. E. R. Veale was a guest. An invitation was received from the Paris Rotary Club to visit during the forthcoming sessions of Rotary International.

IN THE CHURCHES

SERMONETTE

The Old Rugged Cross

Now that the radio is welding us into one great family, it has been ascertained that the favorite hymn called for by millions of listeners on the air is "The Old Rugged Cross" and I use it to close the little series of articles on "The Atonement of Jesus Christ." The hymn and the music were written by Rev. George Bennard.

On a hill far away stood an old rugged cross,
With blood so divine,
The emblem of suffering and shame;
And I love that old cross where the dearest and best
For a world of lost sinners was slain.

Oh, that old rugged cross so despised
By the world,
Has a wondrous attraction for me;
For the dear Lord of God left His glory above,
To bear it to dark, Calvary.

In the old rugged cross, stained
With blood so divine,
A wondrous beauty I see:
For 'twas on that old cross Jesus
Suffered and died,
To pardon and sanctify me.

To the old rugged cross I will ever
Be true,
Its shame and reproach gladly bear;
Then He'll call me some day to my home far away,
Where His glory forever I'll share.

So I'll cherish the old rugged cross,
Till my trophies at last I lay down,
I will cling to the old rugged cross,
And exchange it some day for a crown.

God save us all, through the redemptive message of the Cross.

MISS OLIVIA MADDOCKS

Miss Olivia Maddocks, who died April 26, was born in Owl's Head March 18, 1866, daughter of Capt. Thomas H. Maddocks and Elizabeth (Perry) Maddocks. She had been a resident of Rockland nearly 50 years, her life's occupation being a dress-maker. She learned the trade with Mary Maddocks at their place at the corner of Oak and Main streets.

For the past 10 years, Miss Maddocks was a semi-invalid and was lovingly cared for by a sister, Miss Mabel L. Maddocks, who with another sister, Mrs. Charles Magee, has the sympathy of a host of friends.

Services were held April 29 in the Owl's Head chapel. Rev. J. Charles MacDonald officiating. Interment was in the family lot of Owl's Head cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the friends and relatives of our grandfather William Price for the kindness and flowers received during his illness and death. Miss Athelene Tibbets, Mrs. Marguerite Tibbets.

WE ALL LIKE PETS

Bernice Angus, brilliant young writer and playwright whose forthcoming Broadway production will be a novelty with an all-colored cast. She poses with her prize-winning cats, Redi and Noli, and her Cairn terrier, Dundee, a gift of Eva Le Gallienne.

There is something in most of us that demands that we keep pets.

Perhaps it harks back to the days when mankind lived closer to outdoors and its creatures than now.

Maybe it's because at times we all like a friendly creature at hand in whom we can confide. At any rate, to many people a pet-less home is a dull one.

The world's population to many pet owners, is divided into two parts—those who like cats (or dogs) and those who don't. If you ask those who don't like four-legged pets why they harbor their dislike, it's either because they distrust all animals, or that pets just aren't worth the trouble. Another reason is because they don't like the odor that such furry friends bring into the house.

This is so common, and such a difficult objection to overcome that news of a means to combat it is good news indeed. It's an odorless household deodorant in the form of a pure white powder which, when dissolved in water, forms a solution that removes all odors from canine and feline friends and the places where they have been. If you're a dog owner, you know how your pal is likely to roll in things the minute he escapes from under your watchful eye; if you keep a cat, you know how his private lat becomes at times.

This new solution is perfect for washing pets, and I know it can't hurt them, because I watched a pet store proprietor drink a whole glassful to prove it to me. I might mention in passing, that he had 350 birds and dozens of dogs and cats in his place, and with your eyes closed you'd never have known it.

My own first allegiance is to birds. I love them. My mother used to keep a large aviary with at least 70 little finches of different kinds in it, and in my apartment now I have a parrot and two canaries.

Here's one important thing you should know—never wash your perches in water. A damp perch is very bad for your bird's feet, and may harm him for life. Always scrape perches with a dull knife, and you'll find them cleaner and better than new.

Every two weeks or so I take this same powdered deodorant that you can get in any drug store, mix a solution, and go over all the cage bars, the bottom tray and the loop attachment at the top with a wet rag. It completely does away with any odor, helps keep mites away and cleans off all the dust. Use it in the water cup too, to get rid of that green sediment.—By Mary Talbot.

Association was organized with these officers: President, Edward Brown; vice president, Nettie Sampson; secretary, Agnes McNamara; treasurer, E. O. Burgess; executive committee, Rita Smith, Mrs. E. Carleton, Margaret Ruggles, Elizabeth Butler, and Cora Russell.

George Elliot of Thomaston fell from his boat breaking one arm and cutting a gash on one knee.

THE SAUNTERER

A. B. Crocker

My acquaintance with the town of Concord, Mass., dates back quite a few years further than my acquaintance with Henry David Thoreau and his writings. More than 40 years ago, in the "horse and buggy days," a friend in Boston used horses in this business, so in season he would often hitch a pair to a wagonette and we'd all take a ride. Frequently we would go to Lake Walden, Sandy Pond, Lincoln, or Concord and eat our lunch on the bank of the Concord river, hard by "the rude bridge that arched the flood" as Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote.

I have walked and ridden all around Concord and vicinity, visited Sleepy Hollow Cemetery and have been up and down Concord river in a boat, so when I read Thoreau's book I could visualize the scenes as he described them. He loved intensely his native village and was always comparing it with other places he visited and which to him were not up to the standard of "Dear old Concord."

He knew the flora and fauna of Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire and some parts of Canada. He wrote that he could tell within three days, the date of April by the flowers as they appeared. Just to show his knowledge of botany, here is an incident which occurred in one of his saunterings during a life which began July 12, 1817 and ended May 6, 1862: In July 1858, in company with a Concord friend, he made a trip by horse and wagon to the White Mountains.

They wished to visit Tuckerman's Ravine, so went to the summit of Mt. Washington. As the day was foggy, the guide refused to make the trip. Thoreau had a map which he had made from one in a tavern where they stayed, and aided by his compass, they started, found the ravine, came down it and saw the iceberg, but in transit Thoreau fell. He got up, walked a few steps and then found that he had sprained his ankle. At this point he suddenly picked up a plant, saying, "Here is the Arnica mollis which I have never seen before."

They had written down the names of 46 species of plants which they had hoped to find among the White Mountains. They found 42.

During his last trip to the Fells, I found a small cowslip and small skunk cabbage growing near each other. I dug them, took them home and put them in a pot, together, and they are doing nicely, thank you. Every time I look at my plants I can see my swamp with all its flowers and the blue sky and bright sun overhead. They are my children and I am responsible for their bringing up.

Thoreau wrote Jan. 23, 1840 to his eldest sister, Helen, who was teaching in Roxbury: "When Robin Redbreast brings back the springtime, I trust that you will lay your school duties aside, cast off care and venture to be gay now and then, roaming with me in the woods and climbing Fair Haven cliffs—or else, in my boat on Walden, let the water kiss your hand or gaze at your image in the waves." (Imagine a 23-year old boy in 1937 writing his sister in that language!)

Times are changed and we are changed with them. The boy of today is more likely to write, it at all, in this fashion: "Say Sis, when you have your vacation, we'll take the old bus and go places. Nantasket Beach, Revere Beach, Marblehead, Onset and the Cape, and see things. Forget that you're a school marm, live up and be a real human being once again." According to Thoreau's journal, the winter of 1855-56 was different in New England from that of 1936-37. He sums it up as of April 1: "The snow was constantly 16 inches deep, at least, on a level in open land, from Jan. 13 to March 13. I cut a hole in the ice March 11 in the middle of Walden. It is just 24 inches thick, 11½ being snow, ice 12½, water ice, and there is between three and four inches of crushed snow above this." At any rate we may say the sleighing lasted till April (100 days).

"The snow grows more and more solid, apparently freezing at night quite hard. William Wheeler tells me that it was more solid this morning than at any time in the winter and he was surprised to find that it would bear his oxen where it was three or four feet deep behind his house. On some roads you walk in a path recently shoveled out, with upright walls of snow three or four feet high on each side and a foot of snow beneath it; and this is old snow." We have had none since March 20. Choppers cannot work in the woods yet and teams cannot get in for wood yet.

"April 10—Some fields are dried sufficiently for the games of ball with which the season is commonly ushered in. I associate this day with the games of baseball played behind the hills in the russet fields toward Sleepy Hollow where the snow was just melted and dried up. I always experienced the uncertainty whether there would be more than one service at the meeting house. This uncertainty old folks share with me." (Emerson wrote that Thoreau never went to church.)

"FIRE OVER ENGLAND"

The production, "Five Over England," to be shown at the Waldo Theatre, Waldoboro, Sunday, was a recent winner of the League of Nations Award by unanimous vote of 52 member nations. It played its world premier at The Radio City Music Hall not long ago. Directed by Alexander Korda and released by United Artists, it is held as one of the greatest dramas ever released from a film studio.

The picture concerns itself with such dramatic historical episodes as the burning of heretics by the Spanish Inquisition, Sir Francis Drake's pirating of the gold-laden Spanish galleons, hundreds of ships of the mighty Spanish Armada locked in fatal combat with the English fleet in the last struggle for supremacy of the sea, a sea aflame with hundreds of burning vessels, cannon belching their last shots before sinking, fire licking at the whole sea coast—"Fire Over England"—adv.

HAMPTON L. ROBBINS

Hampton L. Robbins was born in Union where as a young man, he lived and worked on the farm. He came from the farm to work for Dr. Varney who had a drug store in the building now occupied by F. E. Burdett. After a few years Dr. Varney moved away and sold the business to Mr. Robbins who made a success of it. In 1894 his father built the Robbins block and he moved in there a short time afterward, acquiring a half interest in the block. He was appointed postmaster in 1894 and held the office eight years. In 1896 he associated himself with F. E. Burdett and organized the Union Telephone Company which was one of the first independent companies in the State. An equal ownership was formed with mutual and friendly relations continuing until the time of his death.

Mr. Robbins, who was familiarly known as "Hamp," was one of the most widely known men in the northern part of the county, and always known for square dealing, generosity and public spiritedness. Always a Republican, he never would accept a political office, but was a valuable man on town and county committees, and an ardent worker for the party.

It is frequently said he did not have an enemy in the world and he will be missed and mourned by all who knew him. The town can ill afford to lose men of his calibre.

A New York traffic expert says that the London drivers and chauffeurs enliven many occasions by their wit and sarcasm. One London driver drew up when he saw a pedestrian directly in his way, leaned over, and very politely inquired: "And now, sir, may I ask what are your plans?"—Providence Journal.

GLORIES OF THE COUNTRYSIDE

Nature Lovers May Derive Delight From Scenes of Beauty Near Rockville

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Great, wide, beautiful, wonderful world. With the wonderful water round you curled.

And the wonderful grass upon your breast—

World, you are beautifully drest.

Is not this stanza of William B. Rand's poem "The World" applicable just now? On every side the nature lover can see only beauty. Every thing springing forth into life after months of dormancy seems more lovely this spring than usual.

Anywhere in this village one can see the hillsides bearing trees in new leaf giving the soft delicate coloring that makes a picture of rare tints.

Take a trip along the country side and rest the body and mind while feasting on the charm of spring. For a view of greater range visit one of the hill tops. There's a marvelous outlook from Dr. Fogg's Farm showing the ocean, Chickawaukie Lake and hills and mountains, then from the opposite side of the village a different but equally beautiful view can be obtained from the Joseph's summer home, Porter Acres and from the Richmond Estate.

Dear Subscriber:

We feel that our subscribers will show their appreciation in making an extra effort to take care of their subscription accounts now when presented through the campaign we are conducting. With improved local conditions, we feel that we are justified in making this effort at this time.

One of your friends or neighbors will call on you soon with reference to a renewal of your subscription or the payment of a back account. This Campaign will give employment to a number of local people, your friends and neighbors, who will put the extra money they will be able to make into immediate circulation in the community.

The courage, the confidence, the enthusiasm of our workers, the success of the Campaign as a whole, is in your hands. When you postpone paying your account, when you fail to encourage and help your friends who will talk to you about a subscription, you are opposing a movement the success of which should be a matter of community interest and pride.

But we do not believe many will do this. Knox County people are known for their friendliness and spirit of co-operation and paying their honest debts.

We are frankly taking this means of asking all of our subscribers to make every possible effort to either renew their subscriptions promptly or make substantial payments on their accounts, and at the same time help a friend win one of the cash prizes. In matters of business most of us are in the same boat, and it is necessary that we pull together. Our hopes for the future, our courage, our confidence in the final solution of our most pressing problems are all affected by every conversation with our neighbors.

We call your attention to this with the thought that you will be glad to extend to our campaign workers every courtesy and encouragement. Remember that what you say and what you do about your subscription will either prove a sharp setback to someone who expects and needs your support and encouragement, or will give you the satisfaction of having done your part and will send him or her on the way rejoicing.

We thank you,

THE COURIER-GAZETTE.

HOW YOU CAN BOOST YOUR FAVORITE TO VICTORY

1. By paying your subscription in advance for 12 months or longer, thus saving yourself money and giving the votes to some contestant. The paper costs you less, you get delivery service, are not bothered with weekly payments, and think how much good it will do your favorite contestant.

2. By sending The Courier-Gazette as a present to some relative or friend in the county or who has moved away, and giving the contestant of your choice the votes your payment earns.

3. By talking to your friends and getting them interested in paying in advance or subscribing to The Courier-Gazette and getting them interested in some contestant who is working for votes.

If You Work, Your Friends Will Support You. The Workers Will Win. If You Keep Trying, You Will Get Results. Let Your Friends Know You Are Out To Win

NOTE CONTESTANTS:

Your friends depend first upon yourself. You must have it in you first. If you show your friends how earnest, how enthusiastic, how sincere is your desire to accomplish, to win, they will rally to your aid and help you "go over the top" to victory. Candidates who have not sold one club by 10 P. M. May 15 will be dropped from the list. If you don't report we have no way of knowing you care to keep trying. The workers win.

RELATIVE VOTE STANDING

After the first period contestants who do not take enough interest in the contest to report regularly will be dropped from the list. You can't expect your friends to vote for you unless you put forth some effort.

Guest acting candidates were Grand Adah Mrs. Grace Dodge of East Boothbay, and Grand Ruth Mrs. Gertrude Boody of Rockland, who were presented with miniature gavels. The Boothbay Chapter served a delicious banquet, 16 chapters being represented.

Guest night was observed at the May meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, which met Thursday night at the vestry, with 35 members and friends in attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Minnie Rogers, the meeting was opened by Mrs. Ella Lurvey. Devotions and routine business followed. Program leader, Mrs. Ivy Chatto, then took charge, the topic for devotions being "The Good Shepherd," who also gave the Friend Talk for May. Pleading selections were given by these members—vocal, "The Ninety and Nine," Miss Faith Lurvey; "The Shepherd Psalm," read by Mrs. Eliza Cousins, Mrs. Leona Flint and Mrs. Chatto; trumpet solos, "After Prayer," Winfield Chatto; Mrs. Laura Bushwell gave a talk on "Poetry in South America;" and read two beautiful poems; there were readings by Mrs. Cousins and Mrs. Etta Covey, who gave "Mother's Mite Box" and "Getting Extension Members" respectively. Mrs. Flint read "What Do We See" and Mrs. Lena deRochemont closed this part of the program with four words, "We Receive to Give." A playlet entitled "Granny Receives a Vision" was presented under the direction of Mrs. Buswell with the following taking character parts, Miss Louise Doliver, Miss Faith Lurvey, Miss Madeline Rogers and Miss Ruth Marston. The meeting closed with the Missionary Benediction, delicious refreshments being served during a social hour. The June meeting will be held at the vestry, the third Thursday of the month, Mrs. Alice Brooks to be leader.

Miss Louise Doliver was honor guest at a surprise shower, Wednesday night, given by teachers of the McLean School. The group had dinner at the Green Gables, then going to the home of Mrs. Maud Comins. A shower of miscellaneous gifts was presented in a gay maybasket of immense size, cards offering later diversion. Prizes went to Mrs. Lucy Lowe, Miss Jeannie McConchie, Mrs. Kathleen Burkett and Miss Hazel-tine Watts. Others present were Miss Margaret Stevens, Miss Katherine Veazie, Miss Mabel Stover, Miss Edith Straw, Mrs. Elsa Constantine, Mrs. Nellie Hall and Mrs. Ruth Wood.

SOUTH THOMASTON

Exactly Sixty Attended

This community was visited Friday night with two showers. The elements continued with one all night, but in spite of inclement weather, 60 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Allen, a newly-married couple, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watts to give "Ted" and bride (Cucie Cassidy) a utility shower.

Cards, beano, monopoly and music filled the evening until time to look at the gifts and cut the gorgeous wedding cake. The unmarried friends drew lots for a piece of the cake in which several favors were found. Ice cream and fancy cookies were served also. The young couple were overjoyed with the many lovely gifts received.

On departing the guests expressed kind wishes for the future happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Allen.

It's Paris in the Spring and Loretta Young is lovely and kissable, and Tyrone Power is in a devil of a scrape because it is Paris in the Spring and she is lovely and kissable! Twentieth Century-Fox stars the screen's most exciting sweethearts with Adolphe Menjou in "Cafe Metropole."—adv.

"Cafe Metropole" gets off to a lively start in the smart Parisian spot of that name, where, presiding suavely over his restaurant, Adolphe Menjou seems untroubled by the possibility that auditors will arrive in a few days and discover that the cafe accounts are short the 480,000 francs which he has borrowed.

More interesting to him, is the fact that a rich American patron Charles Winniger, is arriving with his sister, Helen Westley, and his daughter, Loretta Young, and wishes a table reserved for every night. Thus, when Menjou wins enough at baccarat to cover his borrowings, and finds that his slim, handsome young opponent, Tyrone Power, has not the money to cover his losses, he can force Tyrone, upon threat of exposure to the police, to masquerade as His Highness, Prince Alexis Panieff, in a scheme to win the affections of the lovely Loretta and a marriage settlement from her father.

Seeing through this strange Prince from Princeton, whose accent "now she comes, now she goes," Loretta decides to be swept off her feet anyway, and from there on events mount in an increasingly hilarious crescendo, taking a final surprising turn in an ingenious conclusion which solves the personal problems of Loretta, Tyrone and Adolphe, convincing even the latter that Romance, To Order, should be listed on the Cafe Metropole menu as a "specialty of the house."—adv.

At The High School

(By the Pupils)

Rockland High School students were well entertained at their weekly Tuesday assembly by a program presented by the musical organizations of the school.

Through the excellent work on behalf of Director George Law, the band opened the program with the number entitled, "Precision March" and "Overture Lizzella." Following this fine presentation came the Girls' Glee Club with their offering, "Water Lilies." Due to the absence of Mrs. Esther Rogers, the Girls' Glee Club was directed by Albert McCarty, also director of the Boys' Glee Club. The orchestra, lead by Miss Elizabeth Hagar, also gave a splendid performance of the selections, "Just for Fun" and "Carnival Overture." The Boys' Glee Club was greatly applauded on the number entitled "Three for Jack." A very effective closing number consisted of a combined mixed chorus of the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs with their song, "Dear Land of Home." A great display of both talent and ability was shown by all participating in this program.

The Scripture was read by Louise McConnell and the program was read by Eugenia Brault. Weekly school announcements referring to various activities were discussed by Principal Blaisdell.—Edith Dondis

The second period Geography class in connection with its study of Great Britain is collecting pictures, clippings and other material for a scrapbook on the Coronation.

Tuesday, in Miss Salmund's room, the French classes enjoyed two reels of movies consisting of "The Snow Bound Pyrenees" and "Paris." These showed a boat ride along the Seine, Notre Dame, Arc de Triomphe, sidewalk cafes, flea markets, Place de la Concorde, Les Champs Elysees. — Mary Dodge

A feature of outstanding interest at the P. T. A. meeting Monday night was the awarding of Citizenship medals by the Sons of the American Revolution, and Daughters of the American Revolution to Ernest Harrington and Ruth Seabury of the Junior High School.

Five boys and five girls are annually nominated by their fellow students as pupils whom they consider eligible to receive the medal. From these five the final selection is made by the principal of the school and a majority vote of all teachers of the Junior High.

The boy's names presented by the student body this year in nomination were: Ernest Harrington, Paul Mazzeo, Christy Adams, John Crockett, and James Moulaison. The girls were Ruth Seabury, Mary Lamb, Ruth Witham, Geraldine Norton and Helmi Lehto.

The Dramatic and Literary division of the Hobby Clubs, with Miss Nichols as faculty advisor, meets each Friday in the Library. Discussions of plays have included "Idiot's Delight" reviewed by a member who had witnessed the play. At this meeting much interesting material concerning Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontaine, the stars of the play were also presented. The autographs of the famous couple procured by Donald Fogg, when they emerged from the theater after a Boston performance, were also shown to the members.

Other plays reviewed have been "The Taming of the Shrew," "High Tor," a dramatization of Hawthorne's "The Ambitious Guest" and "The Knave of Hearts." Essays, poetry, short stories, and novels have also been reviewed by the club with the books of Mary Ellen Chase receiving much attention at one meeting. Moving pictures, both full length and short features, have also had their share of discussion. Ruth Seabury and Donald Fogg members of the club presented a melodramatic comedy sketch at a recent assembly.

Plans are being put into action to bring out a Junior High number of the Hiltite; Miss Nichols will have charge of this project. A list of Junior High editors will be given out next week.

Edward Hayes post graduate and valedictorian of last year's class, has received a communication from Washington, D. C., that he has passed the Civil Service examination for typist, and he is reporting for work at the Panama Canal office May 24, at a very remunerative salary.

Two interesting first-flight covers were brought into Civics class by Leland Turner. One cover came on the "Graf-Zeppelin" and the other on the "Dirigible Hindenburg." The combined value of both covers would exceed $10.

The committee on the gift to the school from the Class of 1937 has decided to present cement posts and chains for the front lawn. These will eliminate the temporary fence of wood and wire which is now in use.

The Nut Crackers held their weekly meeting Thursday May 6. The high light of the evening proved to be reading of a letter from the Traveling Chairman Frank Steeves, who submitted two excellent puzzles. The club voted to impose a forfeit on everyone who had neglected to bring a puzzle, and these penalties should be amusing.

Bertha Kent has done the clerical work in Principal Blaisdell's office this week, and was assisted by Kenneth Low, Oliver Hamlin, Carleton Wooster, William Cummings, Kendrick Dorman, Donald Peters, Donald Willis, and Edward Sullivan as office boys.

The tennis court is to have a new covering of clay.

In the advanced shorthand class, pins and certificates have been awarded to Virginia Gray and Rose Malburg for passing the 120-word transcription test; Helvi Rivers for the 100-word transcription test, and Mazie Joy, Doris Pierce, Dorothy Munro, Eleanor Harper and Marian Fernald for the 80-word transcription test. In the beginners' class, pins and certificates were also awarded to Margaret Rogers, Virginia Willis and Lillias Young for passing the 60-word transcription test.

Registration cards have been filled out this week by the 8th Grade, the Freshman, Sophomores, and Juniors, for their courses next year.

AT PARK THEATRE MONDAY-TUESDAY

George O'Brien, right, comes into the Oregon woods as a tenderfoot lumberjack, a sofiie from Park Avenue who was not considered able to swing an axe or his arms in fistic combat. But George in his new starring vehicle, "Park Avenue Logger," produced by George A. Hirliman for RKO Radio release, soon proves as much at home among the forest giants as he did in New York among the skyscrapers.—adv.

ON HIS NEW JOB

"Carl" Moran Occupies a Large Office and Has a Big Job

A stout, ruddy-faced man from a Maine seacoast town occupies a fourth-floor office in the Commerce Department Building aiding the administration of the American Merchant Marine.

Edward C. Moran, Jr. of Rockland, who fought through two sessions of Congress, as a Maine representative, for what he believed to be adequate ship subsidy legislation, now directs the operations, traffic, and marine insurance activities of the Maritime Commission.

As a member of the commission, he occupies an office in what has been described as the largest governmental office building in the world. His office windows overlook the ellipse, between the White House and the Washington Monument.

In the division of duties among the five members of the commission, Moran was assigned those departments which handle operations, of the merchant fleet, administration of the subsidy payments to private operators, labor problems aboard ships, the development of marine traffic and terminal operations.

As director of operations, he supervises the movements of the 35 Government-owned vessels turned over to the Maritime Commission by the Shipping Board. Similarly, any additional vessels the Government might attempt to operate in the future will come under his supervision.

Although the research division, under another commissioner, works out the construction and operations of the terminals which determine the amount of the subsidy paid private ship operators, the administration of the subsidy comes under Moran's jurisdiction.

The operation of terminals places in his hands the administration of the real estate holdings turned over to the commission by the Shipping Board Bureau. In that capacity, one of his first duties will be to look into the possible disposal of certain lands secured by the board during the war, but which are now useless. As traffic director, he will be charged with the future development of operations for American ships.

Although much of official Washington awaits with uncertainty the Maritime Commission's offering of a program of mail contracts based on operation differentials between American and European operating costs by June 30, Moran expressed confidence a plan will be worked out in that time. The present mail contracts expire on that date.

His office is arranged in a manner similar to the office he formerly occupied in the House Office Building. Its furnishings include, on the walls, pictures of Congressional associates, including Vice President John N. Garner, Speaker William B. Bankhead, former Speaker Joseph W. Byrnes, Senator Francis T. Maloney of Connecticut and Representative Otha D. Wearin of Iowa. The last named was associated with him in the fight against the first ship subsidy bill which passed the House over their joint opposition and died in the Senate. All the pictures were in his congressional office.

Although as a member of Congress, he occupied apartments or a hotel suite, he has now rented a house in the northwest section of the city.—Associated Press despatch.

Guardians of Our Coast

Why is it that the poets tell
So little of the sense of smell?
These are the odors I love well:

The fragrance of a sunny pipe;
The smell of apples, newly ripe;
Or rich plum pudding, holly-crowned;
Or onions fried and deeply browned.

Woods by moonlight in September
Breathe most sweet; and I remember
Many a smoky campfire ember.

Campfire, turpentine and tea,
The balsam of a Christmas tree,
These are whiffs of grammar—
A ship smells best of all to me!

—Christopher Morley

Portland Head

Arthur Harlow of South Portland was dinner guest Tuesday of R. T. Sterling.

Mother's Day was very quiet here. Capt. Oliver Perry of Rockland called on F. O. Hilt and family Sunday afternoon.

Bali games are in full swing at Cape Elizabeth High and Robert Sterling Jr. keeps busy. He can hardly find time to eat and sleep with school and all the present day activities.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dow were guests Sunday of F. O. Hilt and family.

T. M. Robinson, son Lavern and H. G. Robinson of East Rochester, N. H., called last Saturday on the Hilt family.

Mrs. R. T. Sterling entertained Good Timers Wednesday—all hands on deck at an early hour and a bright sunshine put everyone in a merry mood. The time was equally divided sniffling in some of our salty air, viewing the ocean and the general indoor goings-on. Mrs. Sterling served dinner.

Owing to all the general work at the station, and entertaining visitors, we heard little of the Coronation exercises but possibly we were on hand for the most impressive part. Our reception was fine and we know all along the coast, especially our brother lightkeepers and their families, were listening in to this once in a lifetime service.

Once again we extend sympathy to a bereaved family of a retired keeper—the relatives of Leonard B. Dudley, Tenant's Harbor, who served on the Southern Island Light and retired from that point.

Some Old Ships

In the Baltic Sea there is a ship known as the Constance, which is said to be 214 years old and still in sailing service. This ship was built in 1723.

Sweden has a vessel built in 1749. She is called the Emanuel and is still engaged in carrying lumber.

In 1919 the Good Intent, a vessel built in 1790, was sold at Cardiff for the sum of $1000. At that time it was doing regular service.

The U.S.S. Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides" was launched in 1797—From the Pathfinder.

The salesman who lost his temper and told the superintendent to go and boil his head was hauled before the managing director. Still wrathful, he invited that dignitary to eat coke.

The managing director was furious. "What is this man's record?" he demanded.

He learned that the man had increased his sales by 300 per cent during the previous quarter.

"Oh!" said the managing director, in a changed tone. "In that case you had better make your own arrangements, but I shall send out at once for some coke."—Montreal Star.

to mar the roadside. We saw cobble stone roads, laid during Revolutionary days, over which Hessian prisoners traveled and nearby a Revolutionary burying ground. We saw the Carlyle House where five met to draft the Constitution; the actual birthplace of the United States. Everywhere we seemed in intimate contact with the historic past.

On the outskirts of the National Park a temporary village was under construction. Thirty thousand tents and buildings were already set up in preparation of the national jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America.

We browsed around in the Alexandria-Washington Masonic Lodge, with which Washington was so closely associated after it became separated from the Mother Grand Lodge of England, in 1787. In a case was Gen. Washington's bed-chamber clock, the hands of which were stopped by Dr. Dick at the moment of Washington's death. The clock has never run since. In other cases are to be found his Masonic apron, his wedding gloves, black gloves worn during mourning for his mother; his certificate of membership in the Society of Cincinnati; a picture of Washington painted from life in 1794 and said to be the most authentic likeness in his advanced age; an old chair used by Washington when he was worshipful master; the original charter of the Lodge, a silver trowel used by Washington while President in laying the cornerstone of the National Capitol Sept. 18, 1793. It was also used in laying the cornerstone of the Smithsonian and Washington Monument. President Roosevelt used it when laying the cornerstone of the new Masonic Temple in Washington. President Coolidge used it in laying the cornerstone of Washington's Masonic National Memorial.

There was the gavel made from wood of the Washington Elm at Cambridge under which Washington stood when he took command of the Continental Army. Here also was Washington's historic pocket knife given him by his mother as a reward for his submission to her will with the injunction: "Always obey your superiors." To his beloved friend he expressed the significance of the knife. When he was about to accept the commission of midshipman in the English Navy, word came to him of his mother's disapproval. At Valley Forge, when Congress failed to provide food, clothing and shelter for his poorly equipped army, he wrote his resignation as Commander-in-Chief and called his staff to advise them of his action.

Gen. Knox reminded him of his mother's injunction, adding, "You were commanded to lead this Army and no one has ordered you to cease leading it." Half an hour later before up his resignation and determined to fight to the end. A mother's command may have shaped the destinies of our whole nation.

Soon we arrived at Mt. Vernon, the Washington Home, which had been allowed to deteriorate, but was finally restored and is now maintained by Mt. Vernon Ladies Association. Gradually the original furnishings which had been distributed among the heirs, are being acquired. Two-thirds of a mile from the old time entrance with a gatekeeper's lodge on either side, through a vista opened by Washington the Mansion stands revealed. The back entrance is less impressive, but no less picturesque, than the front. Across the bowling green and into the courtyard have rolled coaches bringing colonial neighbors and distinguished visitors from all the civilized world. Flanking the Mansion on either side and connected by curving colonnades or covered ways, are two wing buildings.

In his diary, Washington notes, "Planted scarlet honeysuckle at the columns of my covered ways." This feature had been restored. The east front, commanding a sweeping view of the Potomac for miles, is marvelous. Three lined vistas, affording extended views from the Mansion, were carefully developed by Washington. On the North Lane is the spinning house where 12 or more were constantly employed spinning, weaving and knitting. Next is the museum house with its extensive collection of Washingtoniana. On the South Lane is the smoke house, coach house and barn. This group of buildings about the Mansion constitutes a small village which, with surrounding farms, mills, and fisheries is quite as self-contained as any 18th century community.

No room in the Mansion is more intimately associated with Washington's life at Mt. Vernon, than the library. Here his day began and here his day ended. From the broad hall with its winding stair-case, open the living rooms which are beautifully furnished. There are six bedrooms on the second floor and six small rooms on the third floor. One at the south end was occupied by Mrs. Washington after her husband's death, because it overlooked the old burial vault. In Washington's bedroom was the bed made especially for him. It is six feet wide, six and a half feet long and seven feet high. The kitchen is at the end of the covered way. Beautiful flower gardens are symmetrically placed on either side of the bowling green and are believed to remain substantially the same as planned and developed by Washington.

Once more we were off into historic Virginia. We left the Lee Highway and journeyed over the Jackson Memorial Highway toward the Shenandoah National Park. Peach trees were in bloom; also dogwood, single and double cherry trees, magnolia, red-dog, mountain laurel and Japanese quince, all along the way. Great fields were plowed where corn, wheat and oats would soon be planted, over which turkey-buzzards were flying in quest of prey. Passing through Aldie, a place of much poverty, on the Braddock Road, is a marker for the French and Indian War. In many of the old houses at Middleburg were stationed troops during the Battle of Gettysburg. Many of the old houses were built of rocks and whitewashed on the outside having huge chimneys, some nearly equal in size to the shacks themselves. We were told that most everyone in that section owned at least one horse of blooded stock. Many horses were seen, maneuvering in preparation for their famous horse shows. Close by the road was an old original covered wagon under which was a litter of baby pigs growing into that famous Virginia ham.

For miles and miles dead trees lined the highway, the aftermath of a terrible forest fire which swept through that section eight or ten years ago. At 1150 foot elevation we passed through Paris which is a place of tumble-down, whitewashed shacks. Darkies were everywhere loitering, in apparent blissful content, on their rickety porches or their shovels. But even here was recompense in the beautiful panorama. All about were the famous apple orchards with quantities of peach trees in full bloom.

Many beautiful old colonial estates, with caretakers quarters outlying, were scattered along the highway at various intervals. Great farm lands of brick-red soil were turned over, hemmed in by vivid greens and rich bloom, the contrast looming far on the horizon.

Shenandoah National Park comprises 180,571 acres and extends approximately 90 miles from Front Royal to Waynesboro. A beautiful building on a huge estate has been erected in memory of the Battle of Saratoga in 1777. We passed an old whipping-post where, no doubt, much history has been written with the so called cat-o-nine-tail whip. Up and up we climbed to an elevation of 3390 feet. Much of this "Sky Line Trail" was opened only last fall and as yet fences are few and far between. Sheer drops were on every side where only a good car with good brakes and a good driver stands between one and eternity. We went over 32 miles of the 65 mile trail now open which will eventually extend into Tennessee, a distance of 500 miles, winding around the tops of the Blue Ridge Mountains. In parking areas where we stopped to view the marvelous panorama the trail could be seen winding, like a ribbon, for miles ahead and behind us. We looked down into a sea of lesser peaks all about us. Six turns of the Shenandoah River threading its way to the sea were visible in the distance.

We approached Front Royal, a place which grew warm during the Civil War. Near here was a tablet which marked the first and second battle of Bull Run. Luncheon was served at the Inn and we were off on the homeward stretch over a Trail which had little of historic interest, until we neared the end of our 200-mile drive.

Where women gather their must be teas, luncheons etc. The most colorful of all was the Congressional Club's Breakfast which is given annually in honor of the president's wife. It was given at Hotel Raleigh at 12 noon. I was guest of Mrs. E. C. Moran, Jr., and at our table was Mrs. Clyde H. Smith whose guest was Mrs. Katherine Hall of Madison. The United States Marine Band Orchestra played as Mrs. Roosevelt came into the room, followed by wives of the Cabinet members, and officers of the Club. They were seated at a raised table, around which were arranged tables for eight, attractive with jonquils, irises and ferns. At one end of the long room a fanned flag was waving which cast shadow into a brilliantly lighted corner.

The President's wife was simply gowned in Burgandy crepe with corsage of orchids and wore a plain black hat. She gave a short address. The five-course breakfast started with "Supreme of Greatfruit and Strawberry," served in stencilled grapefruit baskets arranged on green leaves and most attractive. The finale was "Bombe Cardinal on Illuminated Ice Socle," or in other words, balls of ice cream rolled in cocoanut arranged on platters around mounds of ice frozen in various shapes, and lighted. Lights were dimmed and the parade of waiters appeared bearing the ices. Mrs. Roosevelt's was like a glass basket filled with cut flowers. Interspersed during the breakfast hour were soprano solos by Charlotte Symons of the Metropolitan Opera Association, whose bird-like voice captured the audience.

Following the breakfast there was a brief shopping tour, the only one during our stay in Washington. That afternoon at 4, Mrs. Fulton, a resident of Washington who summers at York Village, gave a tea for the Maine Daughters.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt gave a reception for the Daughters. Receiving with her in the Blue Room was Mrs. Becker, President General of the D.A.R. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a blue and white flowered chignon with a single orchid on her shoulder. The First Lady smiled and extended her hand to each one as they filed slowly by for more than three hours. As cordially as if she knew each one personally, and as cheerfully as if she had voted approval of her husband's Court Plan, she greeted the 4500 Daughters. The U. S. Marine Band Orchestra furnished music. We were admitted at the Social Entrance which is a semi-basement and left by the front way, over steps which many famous people have trod during the making of history of our Country.
